Practical Techniques and Strategies for Career Development Practitioners

Welcome to Portland and the Regional Career Practitioner Institute (CPI)! NCDA is excited to offer this “Practical Techniques and Strategies for Career Development Practitioners Institute”, partnering with our Oregon Career Development Association colleagues. This CPI is a chance to connect, share and learn from so many that are passionate about careers.

The coordination of each of our regional CPIs starts with committee conference calls and emails that result in planning an event packed with inspiring keynoters, PDIs that are unique, and breakout sessions that will enrich your work as you move forward in your career. We have much to learn from one another and the measure of our success is often determined by how well we build networks, support colleagues, and identify opportunities to grow our programs, practices, and skill sets.

There seem to be too few times in our professional lives that we are able to participate in meaningful sharing and learning opportunities. We hope that this unique CPI will stand out as one of those times for you! The entire NCDA Board looks forward to meeting you and continuing the tradition of hearing from members that “NCDA is like a big family, sharing the passion of career work.”

In addition, we invite you to join NCDA to celebrate its 2019 Conference in Houston, Texas, June 27-29. The theme, Creating Career Interventions to Break Barriers: Empowering Lives and Achieving Equity, was chosen to highlight the importance of creativity in career interventions as well as the need to be vigilant about addressing the opportunity inequities that exist for many people today. We are looking forward to seeing you in Houston for what will be an inspiring conference and encourage you to register early for the conference and hotel at www.ncdaconference.org.

Again, we welcome you to Portland and look forward to learning and growing with you.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Friday, October 26, 2018

Opening General Session

8:30 - 9:45 am

Dr. Norman Amundson

Professor of Counselling Psychology at the University of British Columbia

Dr. Norman Amundson is a Professor of Counselling Psychology at the University of British Columbia. He has given many national and international presentations and has published widely. His most recent publication is a 2018 anniversary edition of his award winning book “Active Engagement”. Dr. Amundson’s many accomplishments include the Eminent Career Award from NCDA and an honorary doctorate from the University of Umea in Sweden.

Closing General Session

3:00 - 4:00 pm

Dr. Spencer G. Niles

Dean of the School of Education, The College of William and Mary

Spencer “Skip” Niles is Dean of the School of Education, The College of William & Mary. Previously, he was Distinguished Professor and Department Head at Penn State (where he also developed a CACREP-accredited career counseling program) and Professor at the University of Virginia. Additionally, Niles has directed a career counseling center for adults, worked as a career counselor in higher education, maintained a private practice focusing on career counseling, and served as a career counselor for middle school and high school students. He is the current Past-President of Chi Sigma Iota. He has published more than 130 publications and delivered over 150 presentations focusing on career development theory and practice. He has been a Fulbright Scholar in Finland and taught in over 25 countries. Niles is an Honorary Member of the Japanese Career Development Association, the Italian Association for Educational and Vocational Guidance, the Board of Directors for the International Center for Career Development and Public Policy and a Lifetime Honorary Member of the Ohio Career Development Association.

Involvement in NCDA

Niles has served as a member of the Board for NCDA for over a decade, including serving in the roles of President and Governing Council Representative. He was also a two-term editor of The Career Development Quarterly and the Journal of Counseling & Development. He was a two-term President of the Virginia Career Development Association. He is a current member of the Organizing Committee for the NCDA Credentialing Initiative. Niles has served on multiple NCDA committees since 1989.

Educational background and other pertinent involvement

Niles received his doctorate from Penn State University and has participated in leadership training at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. He is the recipient of NCDA’s Eminent Career Award, ACA’s Thomas Sweeney Visionary Leadership and Advocacy Award, ACA’s President’s Award, ACA’s David Brooks Distinguished Mentor Award, the ACA Extended Research Award, and the University of British Columbia Noted Scholar Award. Niles is a Fellow of NCDA and ACA.

Goal Statement:

My goals start with listening to members’ concerns and goals for our association and then focusing on ways to address these as we also strengthen our profession by advocating for important career practitioner credentials, and engaging in the important dialogue influencing federal legislation supporting career services. I have a longstanding commitment to working with our international colleagues in the area of career development and public policy. Although, many countries look to NCDA as they create their own ethical standards, career development facilitator and career counseling competency statements, etc., I think we can strengthen our engagement in the public policy arena. Simultaneously, we must continue providing cutting edge career intervention resources to our members as they inspire careers and empower lives.

Feller Create HEROIC mindsets (H ope, self- E fficacy, R esiliency, O ptimism, I ntentional exploration and C uriosity and C larity) and clients learn to navigate a lifetime of transitions. Use narrative assessment (onlifetools.com) and clients discover possibilities. Offer aptitude assessment (youscience.com) and clients find their competitive advantage (see the latest research). Stop using the “what do you love to do” question and watch clients be more marketable, expand options, and receive employers praise. Confront the “exposure bias” within interest-only tools which may reduce client success. Use games and on-line storytelling to engage more clients. Leave session with skills to expand your impact, scale, and deliverables. Promise! | Garden A & B |

Metaphor Making for Counseling and Case Discussion

Dr. Norman Amundson, Professor of Counselling Psychology at the University of British Columbia

Metaphors are an integral piece of story telling and can be used as an analytic and intervention tool for counseling and case discussion. Metaphors are creative and useful ways of understanding and externalizing problems. There are several steps in this process, starting with Identification, moving to Elaboration, exploring various forms of Extension and Perspective Shifting, and then concluding with Reformulation. In this presentation I will be describing and illustrating the various processes with case examples. This information can be applied in many different professional contexts.

| | #1 Women and the Glass Ceiling | Garden A |
| | In this session there will be a discussion about the status of women in the workplace in 2018. We will look at the definition of the glass ceiling, how it affects women and families, why it continues and why it is so difficult to break through. Finally we will explore strategies for breaking through the glass ceiling, what to expect after breaking through and how to persevere. Kathy Evans, NCD A President-Elect | |
| | #2 Are you Credentialed? WE can help! | Garden B |
| | Come hear about NCD A's exciting new career credentials. You will learn about 6 possible credentials, how to choose among them, and how you can apply. In the first year alone, over 500 individuals have been credentialed. You can also join us for a "Jump Start" session during the lunch hour or visit our table. www.ncd acredentia ling.org Connie Pritchard, Chair of the NCD A Credentialing Commission | |
| | #3 A Case Study Approach to Ethics in Career Development | Garden C |
| | Ethical dilemmas are an inevitable part of the complex real world in which we live and work. Approached well, these difficult situations become prime opportunities for learning and effective practice. Come to this presentation to experience a proactive, positive approach to enhancing our ethical sensitivities and learning ethical decision-making strategies. Facilitator: Lakeisha Mathews; Panelists: Cynthia Marco-Scanlon, Tina Anctil and Lisa Severy | |

| | #4 Applying the Hope-Action Model to Your Everyday Career Development Practice | Garden C |
| | Research shows that high hope enhances one's work/school engagement, vocational identity, and academic/task performance. Come and learn how to use the Hope-Action Model with seven key elements: hope, self-reflection, self-clarity, visioning, goal setting and planning, implementing, and adapting, in your everyday career practice. Hyung Joon Yoon, NCD A Board Member, Spencer Niles, NCD A President & Norman Admundson | |
| | #5 Resources for Career Development Practitioners and Educators | Garden A |
| | How can you empower and inspire your clients/students if you cannot identify and access the necessary resources? Internet resources are available 24/7, so take advantage of them! NCD A offers so many practical, online resources that the only problem might be identifying these resources when you most need them. Here is your guide to the award-winning NCD A website and specific career resources. Melanie Reinersman, NCD A Website & Web Magazine Editor | |
| | #6 The Career Practitioner's Guide to Conducting a Webinar | Garden B |
| | Offering a live, online event may seem daunting, but the technology available today makes it easier than ever to reach your audience of students and clients at a distance with a dynamic presentation. This session includes a review and comparison of five free web conferencing tools, as well as a step-by-step checklist for planning, presenting, and evaluating a career development webinar. Whether you are working as part of a school, organization, or private practice, you'll leave with an initial plan for your first web event. Melissa Venable, NCD A Board Member | |

#7 Career Work is Justice Work

Garden A

Career services professionals sit at the junction of client personal fulfillment and their experience with important social systems (i.e., the world-of-work). Career choices are either restrained or enhanced by the fairness of employment systems. This interactive session will explore career services practice through a social justice lens. Attendees will leave with greater personal insight into their own career practice as it aids clients while striving for social justice.

Brian Hutchison, NCDCA Board Member

#8 Mental Health and Career Development

Garden B

The purpose of this presentation is to enable career service providers with key strategies to appropriately address clients with mental health issues. The session will specifically discuss the mechanism of mental health and career development, intake techniques, selecting appropriate assessments and developing a referral process. At the conclusion of this presentation, participants will be able to better articulate practical approaches to identify and serve individuals who have both career development and mental health needs.

Sharon Givens, NCDCA Board Member

#9 Future-Proof YOUR Career in the Changing World of Work

Garden Ballroom

The world of work is changing. Technology, automation, and artificial intelligence are altering or replacing jobs faster than ever, while new opportunities are being created. In the meantime, people are working longer and launching new careers sometimes into our 70s. This is no longer a speculative “future state”; changes affecting us, and those we serve, are happening today! But what does this mean for US, as career development professionals? We’ll discuss how career professionals can stay involved, connected, and supported during these exciting and somewhat uncertain times.

Reclaiming Your Soul from Work

Dr. Spencer G. Niles, Dean of the School of Education,
The College of William and Mary

This keynote highlights the need to honor your authentic self within your career. The pace of living today and the pressure to cope within an increasingly complex career context make it easy to disconnect you from what you do (a soul-spirit disconnect). These disconnections can have disastrous effects on a person’s life. It doesn’t have to be this way, however. There are steps you can take to increase your soul-spirit connection in your life. Increasing the soul-spirit connection empowers you to live a life well-lived. The presentation can be applied to your own career reflection or your work with any client group.
